I believe the Microsoft has stifled development by its practices and policies.
They have worked hard to put any and all competition out of business.

Microsoft should not be allowed to force contracts on other computer makers that requires inclusion of only Microsoft software.

Also Microsoft has a policy of discrimination that needs to be stopped. The discrimination is in the form of FAVORITISM. Primarily of a religious nature. People of a specific religion are allowed special favors that others of different religions are not permitted.

Microsoft publishes RULES people are supposed to adhere to in associating with Microsoft , for instance with their News Groups. This aforementioned discrimination is evident here as well. Since people of a particular religion are allowed to violate these rules on a regular basis by special permission from people of the same religious preference.

If Microsoft is going to publicly publish rules then all people should be required to adhere to them regardless of religious preference.
